Journey to Japan

by T. Geo. Wood.

RAMBLINGS IN JAPAN

Holidays in Japan are numerous and varied. Can you imagine a country that has five holidays in less than a week? Well, we are just completing the series and here they are. April 27 was the climax of Shrine Festival Week, the streets and approaches to all the shrines were marked by red paper lanterns set on wooden poles, giving a holiday appearance. Inside Yasakuni grounds, a complete circus was set up, the main tent built with poles, side shows and fair stalls appeared as if by magic on each side street. This was repeated on a smaller scale at the smaller shrines and people flocked there by the thousands.

April 29 was Emperor Hirohito's birthday. The Sun Flag of Japan flew at all large buildings and government offices. There are police stations and police boxes at every strategic corner with government railroad stations about every four blocks, all flying flags, and the street cars and buses also. The feature of the day was the visit of thousands to the Palace grounds where the Emperor appeared at a special platform several times during the day. The throngs were marshalled into lines of twelve abreast, who walked through the grounds without halting. On their way they must all cross the bridges over the moat, and here at one recent celebration confusion arose, and 17 people died in the crush and panic, but now the organization prevented accidents. The people are used to orderly marching.

May 1st was Sunday and Labor Day. On this day all Labor Unionists meet and parade. It has been largely flavored and dominated by Communists in past years. In 1953 there were anti-American demonstrations just three days after the occupation officially ended. American cars were the main targets of the mobs, who smashed windows and windshields, overturned and burned the automobiles and maltreated the riders. Some of the mobsters were shot by Military and Police.

Since then the U.S. Army has taken no chances. Condition Green was directed. This meant that from certain hours, no American troops or cars were allowed away from the posts except for direct journeys to church services.

The day dawned with heavy downpours of rain. So this years celebration of May Day were damp affairs. The rallies were held in Meiji Park. The papers said there were 90,000 people attending, they expected 250,000. Pictures were printed showing sodden banners, and a solid sea of umbrellas. After the meeting, five streams of umbrellas proceeded to march in different directions, but it was a wet blanket affair.

Yesterday was Constitution Day. Not much happened except the flag display again. This was the tenth anniversary of the New Constitution. Democratic and largely drafted by the Americans, during the MacArthur regime. Under it elections for Gov-

Teach Good Dental Habits At Early Age

If your child follows the usual pattern he may well be a dental cripple by the time he is in his 40's

Dental disease affects practically everyone at some time. The pain, annoyance and even facial disfigurement of dental decay, for instance, affects 90 to 95 per cent of the population.

The most effective approach to the nation's dental disease problem lies in instilling the right kind of dental health habits in children early in life and in making available to them sound preventative measures.

Since sugar is the arch enemy of your child's teeth, one of the basic rules for sound dental health is the elimination of excessive amounts of sugar in the diet. In this regard, the between meal snack looms as the worst offender. Foods commonly eaten by children between meals, often contain large amounts of sugar, inviting dental decay because each snack generates the production of new en-

Funeral services will be held in PLUMBER'S LICENSE. Mr. Gier of Portland on Friday.

Above are shown some of the men and machines that are busy taking out a layer of old dirt, gravel, cinder, etc., to make room for the base and hard top which is to come. Hard surfacing of two blocks of the main business section of the town, plus three or four half-block approaches to the main street will improve considerably the appearance of the street and the conditions which generally prevail in wet and stormy weather. It is to be hoped that the weather man will not be too contrary in the amount of sunshine he does out, as we would all like to see the work finished.

R. Heggie and Sons, Raymond, have the contract for the first portion of the work, and are moving as fast as conditions permit.

Miss Alice Birt, and Mrs. Mabel Veen were visitors in Calgary Sunday. Miss Birt visited her mother and Mrs. Veen with her daughter, Marilyn, who is a patient in the General Hospital.

Air Cadet Notes

Our squadron has been fortunate in having two cadets qualify for flying training scholarships. Four cadets applied from here for the course but, due to medical restrictions, only two of the boys made the grade. They are Sgt. Koyata and Cpl. Nakagana. They are slated to begin training this summer at the Lethbridge Field.

Once again, this year, a large group of Cadets from Raymond will be proceeding to summer camp at Abbotsford, B.C. This will be the third year for this exercise. A total of 5,000 cadets from all over Canada are expected to attend camp again this year. Officers and cadets alike are looking forward to the event.

Ft./Sgt. Melvin Flexhaug has been selected from the Raymond Squadron as a candidate for exchange visits abroad. If he is successful at the interviews in Calgary, he will be one of 58 cadets to go to foreign countries this summer from July 13th, to Aug.

This school is aiming at training the

The Stake House was the scene of a merry Seminary party, Friday, May 6. With Wm. Nalder in charge, the Raymond Seminary students took part in a series of games like "20 questions." Of course, the luncheon was a big part of the night. Everybody enjoyed the pie ala mode, sandwiches and pop. Then they relaxed for the program. Jess Gibb sang a beautiful song, "I Only Have Eyes for You." Wayne Tollestrup and Jim Walker favored the audience with a piano duet, "Dancing Tambourine." Phyllis Salmon sang Smiles followed by a reading "Smack in School" by Wyona Graham. The program was very successful as was the dance following it.

The Year Book for 1954-55 will really be a hit. There will be more photographs and articles than ever before. Mose Fromm took individual pictures of each person in grade eleven and twelve and of each teacher. He has group pictures of grades nine and ten, and others, as the school executives. Anyone wanting a year book must have their money in by May 15. Snapshots and reviews of the year's happenings will all be in this book; a book you will cherish for years to come.

Her finger length veil of illusion net mistled from a heart shaped pearl studded tiara. Her bouquet was of sweetheart roses and stephanotes.

Parents are urged to substitute such other foods as nuts, popcorn, potato chips, cheese or fresh fruits when children want to nibble between meals because these foods appease the appetite without leading to the harmful decay producing acids.

The toothbrush — when used properly — remains one of the most effective weapons for preventing tooth decay. It should be used immediately after eating — especially after eating sweets — because the build up of enamel destroying acids occurs rapidly after meals and snacks.

However, the toothbrush can dislodge the sticky particles only if used in the right way. Since these food particles are most likely to adhere to areas between the teeth, the best method of toothbrushing concentrates on these areas.

In cleaning the teeth, the upper teeth should be brushed downward and the lower teeth should be brushed upward. The bristles should be worked between the teeth. The chewing surfaces should be cleaned as well as the inside surfaces facing the tongue.

A child should be taught to use the toothbrush as soon as all his first teeth have come in — usually between the ages of two and three. He may not do a very good job and his mother or father will probably have to go over the teeth afterward, but he groundwork will have been laid for a basic dental health habit at an early age.

ernors, Mayors and Councils have just been held, with the vast majority for the conservative parties. Japan wants no part of Communism, and is very friendly to the West.

One part of their Constitution, however, has become a dead letter; in this they had renounced war and agreed to have no armed forces. Instead, on the basis of protection from Communism, they are building a ten division army, with air forces and ships, etc., all encouraged and largely financed by the U.S.A. The eventual aim seems to be withdrawal of American forces, who are here as defenders of Japan, and let the country play its own full part of defense even at the risk again of militarism. Certainly there is no evidence of unfriendliness from the Japanese at any level, governmental, economic or personal. Their people drive the Army cars and busses, guard the entrances, handle the policing and all the business of service, from housemaids to cleaners and lawn cutting, cooking and food waitresses.

May 5th is Boys Festival. This seems to be a grass roots holiday and has been building up for the last month. Each home which can afford it has mounted a pole with a wind whirler on top, and below it streamers and cloth fish, carp, which, hollow like wind socks, swim in the breezes.

The size of the fish runs from about four to 16 feet long and is dictated by the depth of the purse. Tradition says one fish for each boy.

Here is the Japanese version of this holiday:

TANGO NO SEKKU

(Boys' Festival)

I think every one of you have seen cars floating in the blue sky over the waves of the roof-tiles of the Japanese houses in these days. The parents hoist flags of a carp in the end of this month for the coming Boys' Festival.

The Boys' Festival or TANGO NO SEKKU which was brought to this country from China about 1200 years ago, is observed on 5th May in celebration of boys as they hold the Doll's Festival for girls on 3rd March. On this day they set up KOI-NOBORI (a carp made of cloth) and FUKINA-GASHI (a bannerole) in their yard, and put SATSUKI-NINGYO (the dolls of this festival) and the models of arms such as a helmet, an armour, a spear, a sword and so forth on show at home. They also set some pretty SHOBU (an Iris) in a vase and some people arrange SHOBU into the edge of the eaves of their house after the old customs. The children enjoy to eat some sweet KASHIWA-MOCHI (a rice cake wrapped in an oak leaf). The people love to take a bath waiting Iris leaves in called SHOBU-YU at night.

SATSUKI-NINGYO (Festival dolls) Many characters are modelled after, but chief ones as follows:

1. KINTARO: The doll of Kintaro is a leading figure of them. It is told that Kintaro is a name in childhood of Kintoki Sakata, and he grew up to be a fine youth with bears, hares, and other beasts for his friends in the recess of Mt. Ashigara near Hakone. As he distinguished himself to conquer the burglars, he became one of the Big Four (4 bravest vassals) of Raiko Minamoto; a famous warlord about 1000 years ago. He was so plump and lovely in his childhood that his name Kintaro became to be pronominal of a model child in good health at present.

2. The Empress Jingu: The young Empress distinguished herself in the subjugation of Korea in the first century.

3. Sukune Takenouchi: The chief vassal of the Empress Jingu.

4. Yoshie Minamoto: The typical war-lord in the eighth century, well known as Taro Hachiman.

5. Shoki: The fanciful man against ill luck in China.

KOI-NOBORI (Bannerole of Carp) It is said that a carp is the strongest and most courageous fish, it leaps up even water-falls. Therefore the parents hoist the banneroles and pray their boys to grow up strong men like carps.

SHOBU (Iris): Leaves of an Iris smell fragrance which was believed to purge noxious vapour and protect their boys from sickness and misfortune.

On all these holidays the Government offices, banks and public buildings are closed. What a break for white collars and the Dan Purcells of Tokyo, but, alas on most days it has rained and today it still is raining, so to us the celebrations appeared somewhat subdued.

Karen Atwood celebrated her ninth birthday Saturday with a number of her little friends. Her mother, Mrs. Paul Woolley, served the young folk a very delightful lunch.

M. D. Jarell, eminent Trichologist, demonstrates causes of baldness and how it can be prevented.

How To Have Hair For A Lifetime To Be Demonstrated Here By Famous Trichologist Offers Written Guarantee

An exclusive interview by Ward Allen

LONDON, ONTARIO (Special)—M. D. Jarell, Director of Jarell Hair Experts of Canada exploded the "myth of baldness" today in an exclusive interview.

"Baldness is unnecessary, costly, and a plague to mankind," says Jarell. "No man need be bald. No man need suffer the stigma of premature old age that is forced upon him because he is losing his hair. The Jarell method of hair and scalp treatment can prevent baldness—can turn colorless fuzz into healthy, growing hair—can make you look youthful again."

Demonstration To Be Held In Raymond

This revolutionary method of home treatment for the hair and scalp will be demonstrated in Raymond, Alberta, Wednesday, May 18 ONLY, at the Raymond Hotel. Trichologist R. Cooley will conduct the private, individual interviews from 12 noon until 9:00 p.m. on Wednesday Only. There is no cost or obligation, and you need no appointment.

Reason For Baldness

"There is always a reason for baldness," continued this nationally known authority. "Hair cannot grow through a scalp that is infected with dandruff, excessive oiliness or extreme dryness. A scalp that has never been exercised cannot be expected to produce healthy hair." Men, and yes, women too, walk the streets today, completely devoid of nature's greatest ornament—hair. Simply because they were not taught the basic rules of scalp and hair hygiene while they were growing up. "The simple answer," emphasized this expert, "is that children should be taught the same simple basic rules of hair and scalp hygiene that they are taught for the proper care of their teeth. If this were the case, baldness would be a rarity today!"

Heredity Not Involved

Trichologist Jarell dodged no issues. He quickly took up the most widely spread theory of baldness—heredity. "Mankind's unrealistic belief that baldness is hereditary stems from a misinterpretation of the theory of genetics. Theory does not state that any person must be bald because baldness exists in the family. What it does say, is that in some families, a tendency exists towards an undernourished scalp." The purpose of Jarell Hair and Scalp Experts is to teach the methods of strengthening the weak scalp and nourishing it to a healthy, vigorous condition. "A healthy scalp will grow hair, if it is not already completely bald," assures Jarell.

Is There Hope For The Completely Bald?

In his travels throughout the United States and Canada, Jarell has collected hundreds of testimonies of his ability to develop weak fuzz into healthy, mature hair. All of his clients have started with a private examination, hair and scalp analysis, and a diagnosis of the disorder. Jarell is quick, however, to tell a hopeless case that he cannot be helped. "We strongly advise," says Jarell, "that no person who is completely bald hold any hope whatsoever of regrowing hair. If there is any fuzz at all, we can restore a healthy scalp condition and the hair will grow normally again as nature intended."

Offers A Guarantee

"Jarell Hair Experts of Canada offer a guarantee to any client who enrolls for treatment. If he or she is not completely delighted at the end of 30 days, the money invested will be graciously refunded," pledged Jarell. "We must have satisfied clients. We must regrow hair. After all, it is our best advertisement."

Is Your Hair Healthy?

If you have a scalp disorder, or if you are worried about your hair, call Trichologist R. Cooley, at the Raymond Hotel in Raymond, Alberta, Wednesday, ONLY from 12 noon to 9:00 p.m. The public is invited. The examinations are private and open to men and women. You do not need an appointment, and you will not be embarrassed or obligated in any way.

Platter Music
For The Homemaker

A pretty platter of Cinnamon-Apple Toast with grilled "little pig" sausages is sweet music to the homemaker. Always a busy person, she is doubly so in the spring, when she may well wish for an extra pair of hands. The next best thing is to have at her finger tips new ideas and recipes, so easy to do that foods almost jump from shelf to range to emerge as hearty appetite appeasers for her hungry family.

What could be simpler or more novel than hot applesauce served between piping slices of cinnamon toast, and surrounded by crispy, flavourful sausage.

Cinnamon-Apple Toast:

3 tablespoons soft butter or margarine
8 slices enriched white toast
2 1/4 tablespoon granulated sugar
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
2 cups applesauce (hot)

Combine sugar and cinnamon and sprinkle about a teaspoon of the mixture over each slice of buttered toast. Place cinnamon toast on an ungreased cookie sheet. Heat in a moderate oven (350° F.) for five minutes. Heat applesauce. To serve: Spoon 1/2 cup of hot applesauce over 4 slices of cinnamon toast. Cut remaining 4 slices of cinnamon toast in half, diagonally, and arrange over applesauce.

YIELD: 4 servings Cinnamon-Apple Toast.

BILL CLARK

RAYMOND

Your Government

A weekly report on the happenings in the Provincial Legislature, specially written by Ken Mason.

Members of the Alberta Legislature returned to Edmonton this week for the second sitting of the 1955 legislative session—a sitting which may turn out to be the most important of the year.

When the session adjourned in April for the Easter recess, the legislature still had not disposed of some of the major bills presented to the house by Premier Manning's government.

In addition to that, there is the question of natural gas export to eastern Canada, in the light of the failure of Trans-Canada Pipe Line Ltd. to obtain financial backing for its proposed $300,000,000 project. The premier gave this as the main reason for calling members back to a special session.

But one of the main items of unfinished business, and certainly the most contentious so far, is the bill which would permit establishment of producer-controlled marketing boards, to market certain agricultural products and set prices.

The marketing legislation became such a political hot potato that the government decided to give it to a meeting of the house agriculture committee, which consists of all 61 members of the legislature.

At last reports, the Alberta Federation of Agriculture and the Western Stock Growers' Association had signified their intention to submit briefs to the committee. It was believed both groups would be opposed to the bill as it was presented to the house—but for different reasons.

The AFA was expected to ask for fewer restrictions on the establishment of marketing boards, while the stockmen already have expressed strong opposition against the idea of having cattle and sheep included in the legislation covering the boards. Because of this opposition, cattle and sheep were excluded from the bill introduced by Hon. L. C. Halmrast, minister of agriculture.

The AFA was expected to oppose the provision in the bill that a marketing board for a specific product can be set up only if 51 per cent of the registered producers vote in favor of it. The group believes this restriction will make it too difficult to set up a board, and was expected to ask for an amendment making it a majority of those who actually get out and vote.

Usually solid Social Credit ranks are split on the marketing board question, and for still another reason. Several Social Credit back-benchers spoke strongly against the compulsory features. They didn't like the idea of a 51-per cent majority imposing its will on 49 per cent who don't like marketing boards.

MLA's debating the bill used words like "dictatorship" and phrases like "injustice to farmers", which gives some indication of the lively battle that has been going on in the Social Credit caucus over the same question for a number of years. Some Social Crediters have said the bill will be abandoned after the agriculture committee hearing.

As the bill stood when introduced in April, it would permit establishment of producer boards to market poultry, poultry products, hogs, vegetables, honey, cheese, commercial grass and legume seed.

Another bill concerning agriculture has yet to receive third reading and it has been described as one of the most important of the 1955 session. It is an act to provide for conservation and more efficient use of natural resources, especially agricultural land.

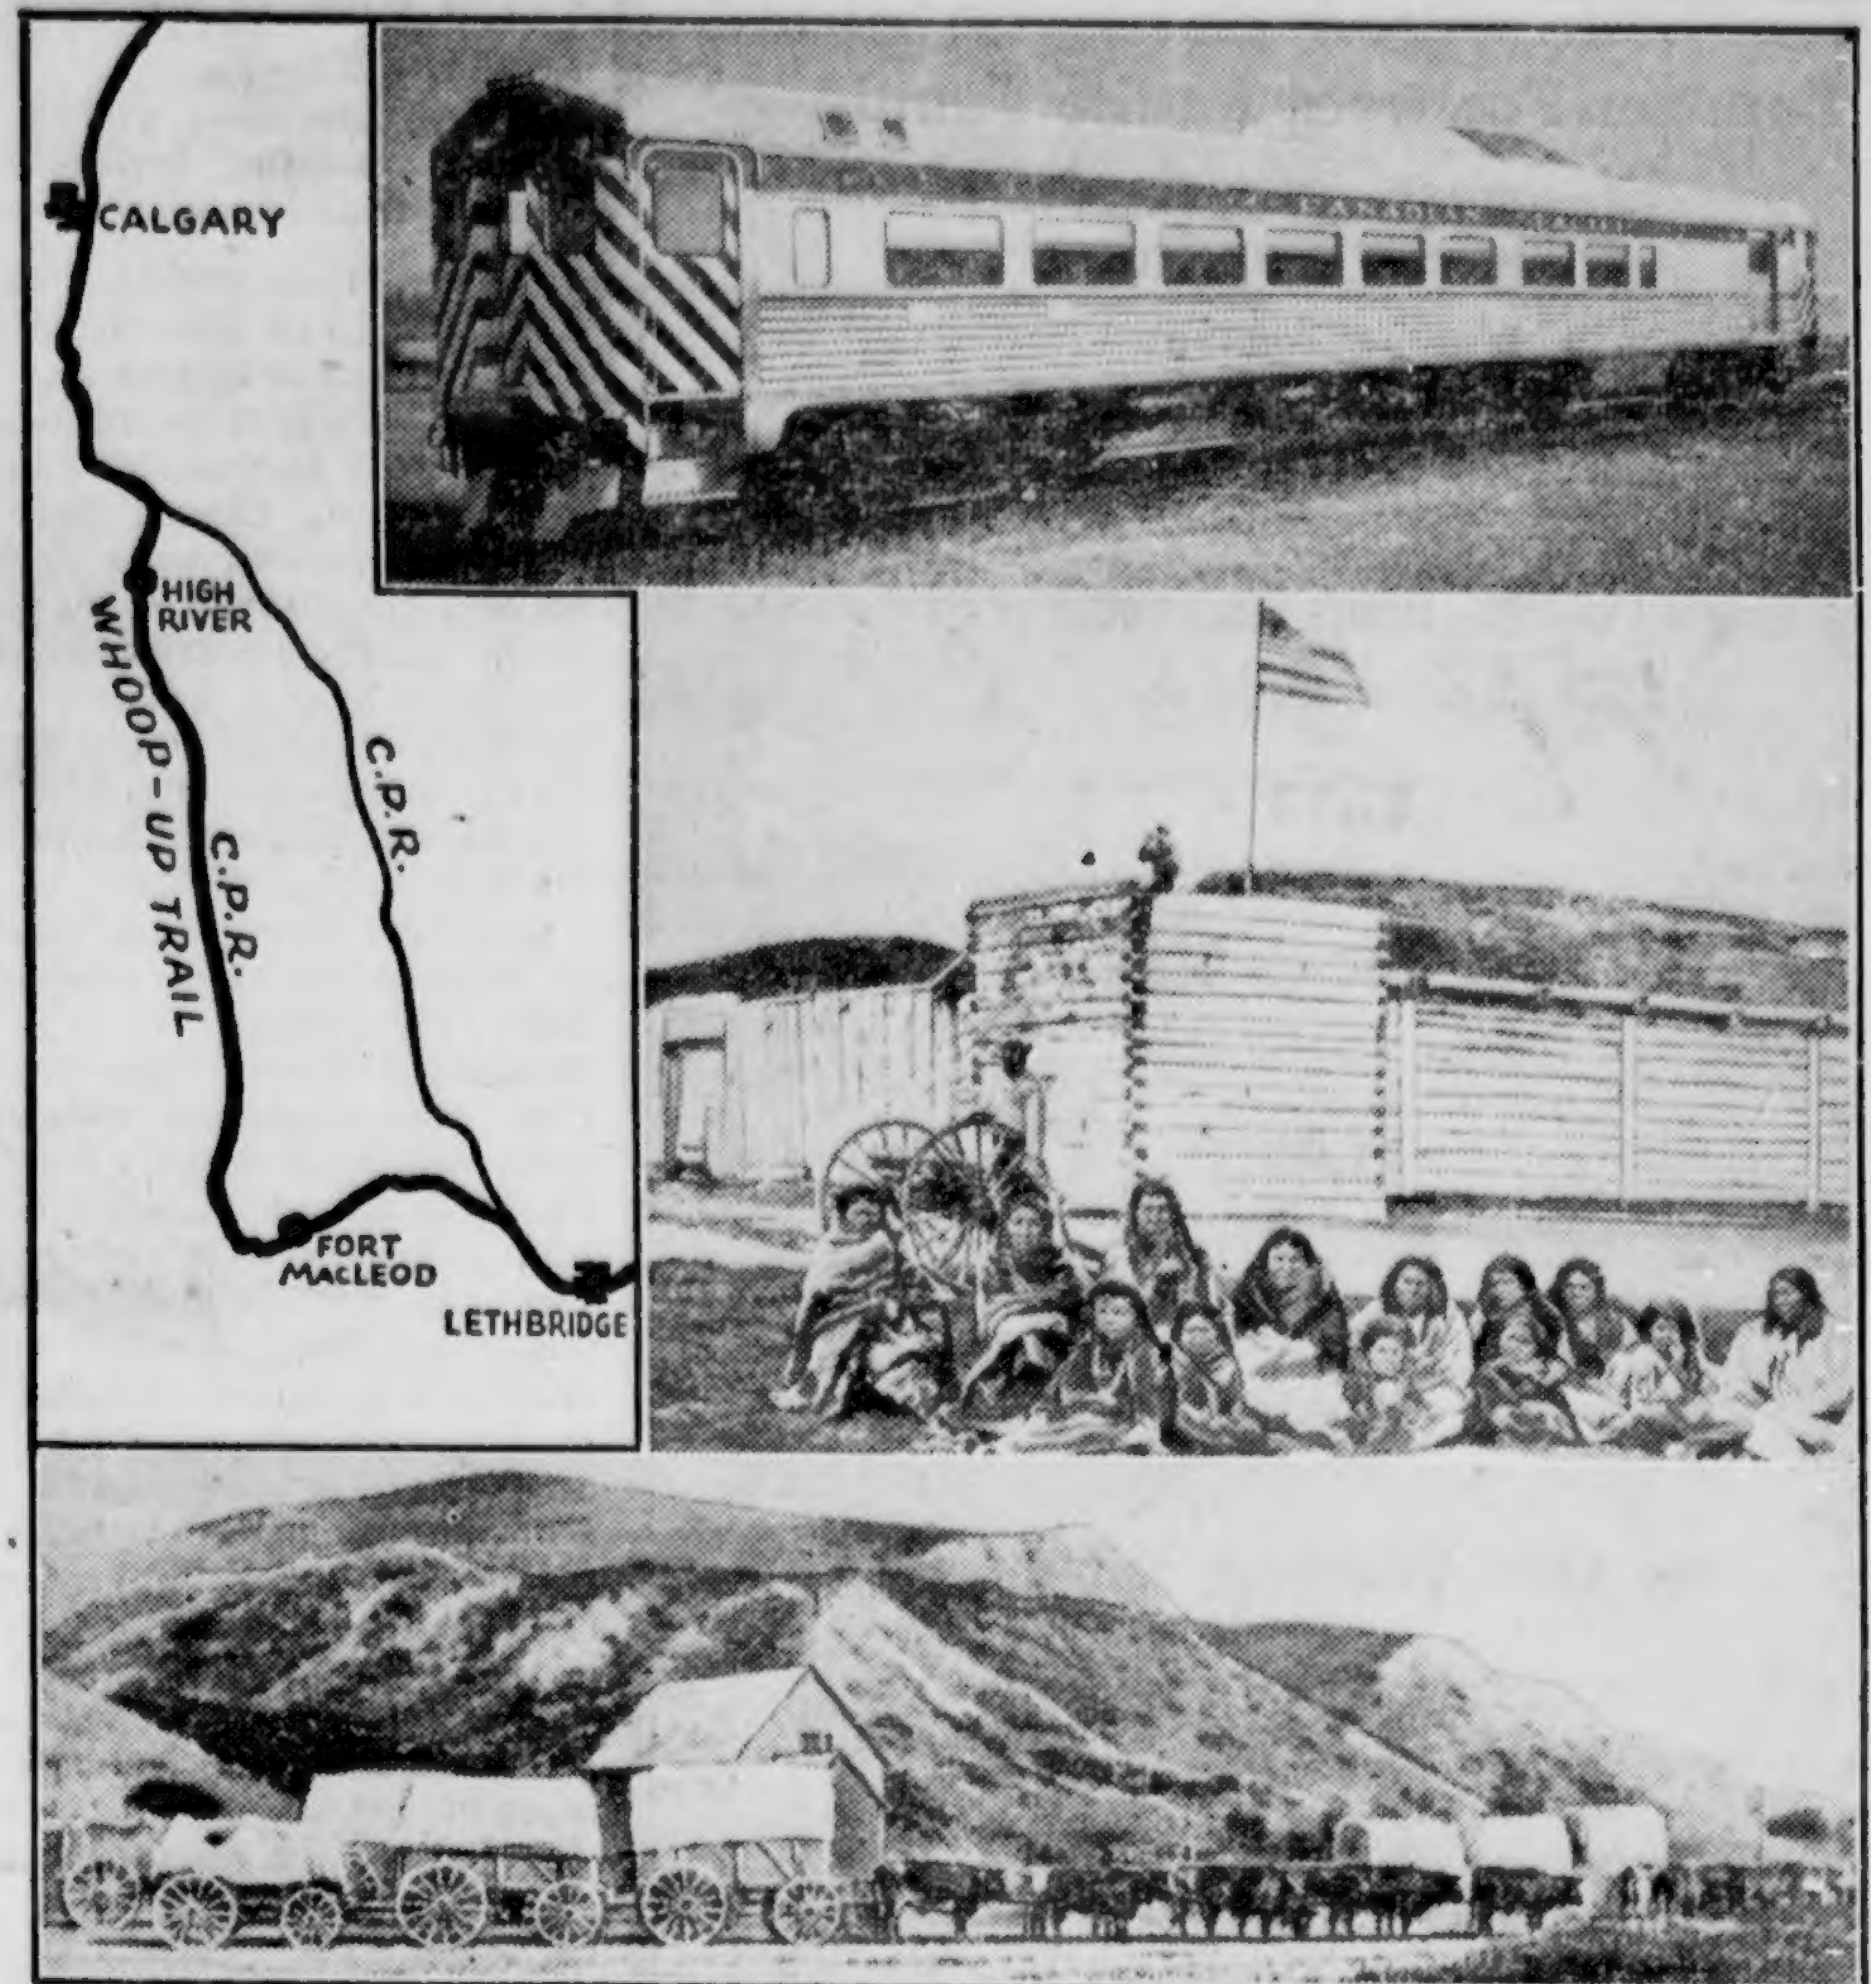

Mr. Halmrast introduced the bill toward the end of the sitting in April and announced that it will involve setting up a board of experts to survey various types of land in the province and determine the best use for them.

Earlier, the agricultural minister, said many farmers are using their land for the wrong purpose—such as trying to grow wheat when the characteristics of the land are better suited to raising sheep.

The new program is designed to advise farmers on the best land use, and as Mr. Halmrast put it, "take some of the heartbreak out of farming." He said much of the board's work will be done on land opened up for homestead leasing, including the grey wooded soil areas.

Just what the outcome of gas export discussions will be is anyone's guess. Since the session adjourned in April Premier Manning has been holding talks with pipeline company officials, gas producers and officials of the Ontario Government.

Originally, it was believed he would have a definite program to place before the legislature. Recently, however, he announced that a meeting of

The pages of Alberta history turn with the wheels of the Canadian Pacific Railway's gleaming new self-propelled "Dayliner" on its 140-mile run between Lethbridge and Calgary, via Fort Macleod. The stainless steel streamliner actually retraces, in part, the historic "Whoop-Up Trail" over which once travelled the legendary bull trains, mule trains, the infamous whiskey traders, and later the horse-drawn stage coach and Alberta's early settlers.

The trail, which had its southern anchor at Fort Benton, Montana, ran 210 miles northward to notorious Fort Whoop-Up, built in 1869 at the junction of the St. Mary and the Oldman Rivers. With the coming of the North-West Mounted Police in 1874, the trail was extended to Fort Macleod and later north to Fort Calgary. Between Lethbridge and Fort Macleod, the old trail touched at several points now touched by the new Dayliners, while beyond Fort Macleod the train ran a course just west of the railway line.

Interested parties will be held in Ottawa after the reconvened session.

At that meeting, he said, officials will attempt to decide whether export of Alberta gas to the east is economically feasible. If it isn't, he said, we'll have to look elsewhere.

The government has been concerned over the delay in selling Alberta gas, and considers it harmful to the province's economy to have the gas remaining in the ground with no available market.

Light Springtime
Dessertsby Consumer Section
Marketing Service
Canada Department of Agriculture

Dessert is the finishing touch to a meal and now that spring is here everyone is looking for new or different dessert ideas. To help home makers the economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture, offer some timely suggestions for tempting springtime desserts. They draw attention to one rule applying to desserts that should be followed and that is to serve the type of dessert that blends in colour, texture and flavour with the rest of the meal.

Generally, desserts are thought of as being of two types, substantial or heavy, and light. Substantial desserts are those like pies, fruit dumplings, steamed puddings and so on while a few of the lighter ones are gelatine desserts, milk puddings, light fluffy whips, fruit cups and such like. A heavy dessert like a cherry dumpling makes a good ending for an otherwise light meal, while a lighter dessert such as a mixed cup is more suitable with a heavy meal. However, irrespective of whether the meal is heavy or light cool, less filling desserts are more popular in the warm weather.

Custard is a perfect springtime dessert — perfect because it fits every occasion and every taste. It is just the thing served plain for a family supper or dressed up for a party luncheon. Whether it is firm or soft custard you start out with the same ingredients — fresh eggs, milk, sugar and flavouring. It is the way that they are cooked that makes the difference.

Baked custards win favour when smooth and velvety with no sign of curdling or watery separation. It is very easy to produce custards like this provided they are not baked at too high a temperature or cooked for too long a time. These firm custards are best oven-poached — that is baked in a pan of water in a moderate oven.

There are many additions that can be made to custards to vary the flavour, colour and texture to make them a little more interesting. To name a few there is coconut, prepared cereal, coffee, chocolate, marsh mallow, maple syrup, caramel, grated or chipped chocolate. A little fruit baked in the bottom of a custard is another variation worth trying. Still another is the old fashioned custard pie with its neatly crimped shell.

Strange as it may seem, when cooking at a low temperature has been considered the secret of a perfect custard, the baked type can be made equally successfully in a pressure saucepan. The only difference being that there is no slight browning on the top of the custard cooked under pressure. To cook custard this way cover each individual cup with two layers of waxed paper and tie securely with a string. Then put half a cup of water in the pressure saucepan and place the custard cups on the rack. Cover saucepan and allow all the air to escape. Cook at fifteen pounds pressure for three minutes then cool saucepan quickly and there it is — a smooth velvety custard in three minutes.

A soft custard or custard sauce as it is sometimes called may be a bit tricky to make so check these secrets carefully. Beat the eggs only long enough to blend the yolks with the whites, also heat but do not boil the milk before adding it to the egg and sugar mixture. When cooking this type of custard it must always be cooked slowly over hot water, stir constantly just until it thickens or coats a metal spoon, then cook quickly. A soft custard can be turned into a glamorous floating island by topping it with a meringue and garnishing with fresh or frozen fruit.

Gelatine desserts are colorful and attractive and they lend themselves to using up bits of left-over fruit or fresh fruit or fruit juice. When stiffly beaten egg whites are folded into partially set gelatine mixtures lovely sponges are produced that can be served with fruit, a custard sauce, or whipped cream. For more elaborate desserts the whipped cream may be folded into the partially set gelatine mixture in place of the egg whites.

A light chiffon pie is a year round treat, but it is especially liked in the spring when a double crust pie may seem a bit too heavy. Milk desserts like blanc mange, Spanish Cream, junket and sherbet are also excellent to serve in warm weather and are simple to make with either fresh fluid milk or milk powder.

The Child Psychology Club met last week at the home of Mrs. Non-avee Jones. Mrs. Virginia Wilde gave the interesting and informative lesson. Mrs. Jenny Housley was a special guest. The hostess served a delightful lunch.
